

Situation & Research Focus

There is an urgent need to address deep rooted societal problems, such as poverty, equality, and climate change. As old formulas fail to meet those needs, innovation becomes essential. That is why the field of social innovation has been attracting interest over the past few years, presenting great chances of successfully meeting these demands. The topic, however, remains understudied, and fragmented imposing setbacks for researchers and practitioners.

Methods

Research analysis on tools and frameworks used to develop social innovation & commercial innovation. Application of methods on real study cases, enabling the proposition of adaptations and improvements.

Outcomes

A toolbox for social innovation will be created. The methods outlined, including frameworks and tools, can be either used to develop social innovation projects, or to continue the academic research on the field.

Illustration:
Sarah Lee Grillo